Dear Attorney,

Trial attorneys are never afraid to learn something new. So I am writing to tell you about a new financial service from our friends at LawFinance Group, Inc. LawFinance is now providing financing to law firms so that firms can meet the increasing financial demands of a trial practice, grow their firms and properly prepare cases like never before. They are also willing to finance those unusual, unique situations that require ingenuity and creative financing.

Most banks do not understand your practice enough to lend against it. LawFinance does. The size of your loan is based on the number and quality of the cases in your portfolio and the success of your practice.

Now you do not have to use your after-tax dollars to adequately finance or expand your practice.

If you are interested in learning more about their new financial services, I urge you to call LawFinance Group at 800-572-1986 or visit them at www.lawfinance.com. They are professional, courteous and will respect the confidentiality of your call.

Sincerely,

Thomas H. Henderson, Jr.
